GRANT HILL

43rd
Annual
Capital Classic

The Capital Classic is the longest running high school basketball All-Star game in the country and since 1974 it has been a beacon in the Washington, DC community, showcasing some of the nation's top high school basketball talent. The game has become a steppingstone for many college All-Americans, NBA All-Stars and Pro Basketball Hall of Fame recipients, such as Moses Malone, Magic Johnson, Michael Jordan, Patrick Ewing, Grant Hill, Carmelo Anthony, LeBron James, Chris Paul and Dwight Howard.

This is our 43rd year and the game will be played at DuFour Center at Catholic University in Washington D.C. on April 28th, 2016.

Suburban vs. District - 6:00 pm
U.S. All Stars vs. Capital All-Stars - 8:00 pm

The 1st ever Grant Hill (1990 Alumni) MVP Award will be given out at this year's game! Upon learning of the MVP Award, Mr. Hill said, "When I was growing up, I remember the Capital Classic was the be all, end all game. I always looked forward to it and every year, my dad and I would go just to watch. I always dreamed of having the opportunity to play in the game, and when I did, it was one of the most incredible experiences. Now, to have the MVP Award named in my honor is such an incredible privilege. I am so appreciative and honored. I look forward to working with Bob Geoghan, the game's founder, and his new team to bring the game back to its iconic status." Hopefully, Mr. Hill's TNT schedule will allow him to attend the game!

Like father, like son? Almost. While his father Calvin made his name as a star in the NFL, Grant Hill has been making his own name on the hardwood. At the rate he's going, Calvin just may be referred to as Grant's dad, instead of vice-versa. At 6'8", this three-time Northern Virginia Player of the Year started at point guard and directed South Lakes to a 25-4 record in 1989-90 and was named Washington D.C.'s "Mr. Basketball" award winner.

The game is being brought back to its iconic status and WILL be brought back to the Verizon Center in 2017!
